

Seattle Post-Intelligencer

Girl About Town

Editor's note: P-I Reader Blogs are not written or edited by the P-I. They are written by readers, for readers. The authors are solely responsible for content. If you see any posts you consider inappropriate, please send us a note at newmedia@seattlepi.com.
· Want to blog for the P-I?

Where I've been

Even though I didn't write much last week, I wasn't on vacation, however, I will be this week. Which means, there will not be an addition of ON THE RADAR. Not that I'm not always on vacation as it is. I work a part-timer until noon, Monday through Friday. Laugh if you will, but it suits me just fine. I'm home by lunch to enjoy the weather, or, the lack thereof, as of late. When the Seattle summer lives up to its good name, I certainly take advantage of it. I lay out on our roof top deck, pretending I'm on vacation somewhere exotic. Call working part-time lazy, I call working full-time detrimental to my health.

Before we went to Vancouver for a wedding two weekends ago, hubby and I stopped at the opening of The Local Vine wine bar for cocktails and hors d'oeuvres. To my surprise, they were delectable. A rare declaration from me by any means. I usually despise any and all hors d'oeuvres...Nevertheless, we celebrated the rarity of the moment.

While in Canada we indulged in hubby's cousin's wedding by serving Tea, a Chinese tradition. Now that we're married, its expected. Later on we attended the banquet where we ate Shark's Fin Soup and other questionable dishes (by my standards), much like we did at our own wedding nearly a year ago. Has it really been that long ago? Damn, time flies.

Posted by Girl About Town Girl About Town at July 29, 2007 11:20 p.m.

D'vine